

Platinum night

It had been a long day at school and Emma decided to leave the library and go back to her campus as it was 11 pm on the clock. As always, she wanted to grab a tea to-go on her way home. It was very dark outside and the young university student started to feel a little uptight as she heard weird noises coming from across the street. Emma gave up on the tea idea, turned around and started walking fast towards the campus.

She was one block away from her sorority house when a person in an animal mask showed up out of nowhere. Emma had almost screamed but she quickly realised it was probably just the school mascot on his way to the gym. Little did she know, that was far from the truth. As she tried to pass by him he pulled out a knife from his pocket and stabbed her right into her neck. Emma fell on the cold ground and blood quickly stained her platinum blonde hair. The poor thing was left there for 8 hours. Finally a friend found her with pulse in the morning on a way to school and called 911.

After recovering in the hospital, police officers came over for hearing. She testified and she wanted to accuse the school mascot but a memory flashed in front of her eyes. Right before she got stabbed she noticed a big tattoo of a snake on the killer's arm, oddly similar to her best friend Bethany's who actually turned out to be the killer. Maybe you're asking why? Not even Emma herself found that out because Bethany was never seen again.